

SUMMARY

Kenya Big Dream continued to emphasize increasing family incomes and raising awareness to protect vulnerable children in West Pokot and Baringo from female genital mutilation (FGM), child marriage, child labor, and other forms of maltreatment.

The project helped participants to learn alternative sources of income, such as poultry farming and beekeeping, impacting 1,785 family members. Less financial pressure helps reduce the circumstances that lead to violence against children. In other FY21 activities:

- 2,211 children received training in Alternative Rites of Passage, learning life skills and children's rights. This helps provide a safe passage to adulthood without FGM. Of these participants, 495 children graduated from the program in the past year.

- 1,187 participants started to experience positive changes in attitudes and behaviors, especially toward children, resulting from community group discussions.
- 938 members of 56 Savings for Transformation groups learned about child protection. By using savings for livelihood activities, they are better able to pay for basic needs and keep their children in school.
- 751 households were trained in Empowered Worldview. A mindset of empowerment—based on biblical principles—helps break the poverty cycle, which is closely associated with child maltreatment.
- 298 at-risk children received fee subsidies to attend school.

Kenya Big Dream trained 500 participants in poultry farming as an alternative livelihood, helping families better meet their income needs, keep their children in school, and reduce the financial pressure that leads to violence against children.

KEY LEARNINGS

Continuous engagement and monitoring of Kenya Big Dream participants are necessary for lasting change in community views and practices regarding FGM. We have identified and equipped two trainers of trainers in every project sublocation to facilitate group discussions and monitor members.

Helping our target participants—to change their attitudes, engage in alternative livelihoods, and lessen the circumstances leading to FGM—not only helps them cease the practice, but also become powerful anti-FGM advocates. In Baringo, 23 former practitioners are involved in beekeeping, farming, raising poultry, and speaking about the negative effects of FGM.

LIFE-OF-PROGRAM UPDATE (FY20-FY24)

PLANS FOR THE NEXT SIX MONTHS

In the first half of FY22, we plan to: 1) Increase communities' capacity to protect children from violence through community engagement forums, children's rights clubs and life skills instruction in schools, faith leader facilitators, and ARP; 2) Continue to strengthen families' livelihoods through more savings groups, farmer group support, and Empowered Worldview; 3) Improve children's access to education, especially for at-risk girls, through building school infrastructure. The project also will begin its second phase in FY22, adding Samburu operations to existing work in West Pokot and Baringo counties. Staff will be hired, trained, and equipped to reach new communities with the activities mentioned above.

THANK YOU

Your generous support of Kenya Big Dream is helping change attitudes, behaviors, and livelihoods to end FGM, child marriage, and other forms of maltreatment. Thank you for giving children and their families hope and dreams for a better future.

“Conversations with my son, who underwent [Alternative Rite of Passage] training sponsored by World Vision, has made me to view things differently. He told me candidly how subjecting our girls to FGM is making their future bleak, as the girls get hurt and undergo a lot of stress, which eventually make them to drop out of school and marry at young age. Sometimes when your own speaks to you candidly, it touches your heart. It was a turning point for me. I have since become an advocate against negative culture and [a] promoter of girl child education.”
